Japanese In Protest At A-Tests

To France, China, U.S. and Russia

By Victor Lusinchi

GENEVA, June 22 (NYT).— Japan sharply rebuked China and France today for seeking to improve their nuclear arsenals by exploding atomic bombs in the atmosphere while refusing to participate in the efforts at the ilsarmament conference here to curb the arms race.

But Masshiro Nielbori, Japanese delegate to the 25-nation conference, also criticized the United States and the Soviet Union for their failure to make any progress toward extending to underground tests the 1963 treaty banning all other nuclear explo

Mr. Nisibori said he regretted that the two superpowers "have not made any substantial contribution" to the efforts to make the ban cover all nuclear testing. "They do not give any evidence," the Japanese delegate remonstrated "of any intention whatsoever of taking any such initiative in the near future,"

By refusing to adhere to the 1963 partial test-ban treaty, China and France are "thus not observing their minimum moral duty as nuclear-weapon states," Mr. Nisibori told the arms conference at the second sitting of its summer

Debré to Confer With Laird On Military Aims on U.S. Trip

By James Goldsborough

PARIS. June 22 (IHT) .- Defense Minister Michel Debre will visit the United States early next month for general military policy discussions with U.S. Defense Minister Melvin R. Laird.

The visit will be the first official visit by Mr. Debré to Washington as head of the French armed forces. He will arrive on July 5 and will spend several days touring U.S. military installa-tions, He will hold talks in Washington on July 10 and 11. He also is expected to confer with President Nixon.

Informed sources said that a full range of military questions will be discussed, including nuclear cooperation, joint targeting and the role of the NATO Joint Strike Force in military planning, The recent SALT agreements also will be on the agenda, as will mntual and balanced force reductions and the upcoming European security conference.

The French participate in all aspects of NATO except the integrated command. Military planners have always hoped to spell out more clearly the precise re-lation of French troops to the NATO command.

Mr. Debré made soma of his thoughts known in a recent article in which he suggested that the SALT accords could lead to a U.S. disengagement in Europe. He disapproves of this disengagement so long as European countries are unable to "find new formulas to assure the Conti-nent's strategic stability." By Bernard Weinraub

BELFAST, June 22 (NYT).—The Irish Republican Army Provisional wing, under intense pressure from the Roman Catholic community to end its campaign of terror, today announced a conditional cease-fire starting at midnight Monday. An IRA statement from Dublin said that the group would suspend "offensive operations" provided that there was a "public reciprocal response" from the British Army. The move was immediately welcomed by the army and William Whitelaw, Northern Ireland's administrator. Mr. Whitelaw said that the army would "obviously reciprocate" when the

Internment May End

The British administrator is believed to have promised that, with a cease-fire, the policy of internment without trial would end, security forces would scale down and possibly halt patrols and searches in Catholic neighborhoods and the army would not move against "men on the run." Mr. Hume, a leader of the Social Democratic and Labor party, representing the bulk of the Catholic minority here, said exuberantly this afternoon: "We have had a dramatic change in the situation. It's extremely hopeful. This is a first step to an end to the violence."

In the 46 hours before the announcement, the IRA Provisional leadership was known to be en-gaged in heated argument over a cease-fire. The powerful Belfast brigade commander, Seamus Twomey, was said to be angry and holding out in arguments with Sean MacStiofain, the Provisionals' chief of staff, and David O Connell, the organization's chief tactician. Mr. Twomey, however, finally relented to the truce. But IRA men, especially in West Bel-fast, remain bitter.

Today's TRA statement was phoned to Dublin newspapers and radio stations by the "Irish Republican Publicity Bureau." The announcement said: "The Irish Republican Army will suspend offensive operations from mid-night, Monday, June 26, 1972, pro-vided that a public reciprocal response is forthcoming from the

It added: "The leadership of the republican movement believes that a bilateral suspension of operations would lead to meaningful talks between the major parties to the conflict.

"The movement has formulated peace plan designed to secure just and lasting solution and holds itself in readiness to present it at the appropriate time."
At least one element of surprise in today's announcement was that there was no time limit to the IRA offer. There were indications earlier that the IRA leadership was discussing only a two or three-week truce.

Another element of both interest and surprise was the IRA demand to take part in any roundtable discussions over the future of Northern Ireland. Mr. Whitelaw previously had rejected offere to meet the "Provos," face to face, because they were, in his recent words, "terrorists who are causing suffering to innocent citizens in Northern Ireland and who are shooting British troops."

The minimum demands of the Provisionals has been the abolition of the Stormont parliament -at present Stormont is merely suspended for a year because of British direct rule—the withdrawal of troops from the streets before their departure from Northern Ireland, an end to internment and the release, and amnesty for all convicted as well as unconvicted political prisoners.

Unity Is Objective The overriding aim of the Provisionals is an end to the border between North and South

The truce announcements came three weeks after the IRA's Official wing—the Marxist-oriented faction at odds with the Provos-called a cease-fire because of "the growing danger of sectarian conflict." It was, however, the militant Provisionals bent on terrorism and the destruction of Ulster's economy, who had carried out the bulk of bombings and shootings in the

Mr. Whitelaw. was named secretary of state for Northern Ireland when Britain took over the province on

Pressure on the "Provos" was stepped up after Mr. Whitelaw's Devlin. Following one of the meetings earlier in the week, Mr. Whitelaw granted a key minority demand: He changed the status of about 120 jailed men, both Catholic and Protestant, to political prisoners after they had been convicted of a variety of crimes.

Separate Prison The men, who claimed that politics motivated their acts, are to be placed in a separate prison and allowed to wear civilian clothes. More important, in the event of an amnesty for political prisoners, they will be released. Following Mr. Whitelaw's move, which was applauded in Catholic nelghborhoods, pressure on the "Provos" grew even more intense. Reaction among militant Protestants to today'e announcement was chilly, especially this evening when the IRA said that the "no-go" areas in Londonderry would remain intact. John Mc-Quade, a Stormont MP representing the Protestant Shankill Road. "It's too ridiculous for words. If Mr. [Edward] Heath, Mr. Whitelaw and the government had the courage they should have, they would just arrest all the IRA and their sympathizers.

"What kind of a peece pact is this? Will they just put their guns under the floorboards for a while," Mr. McQuade asked.

And William Craig, the leader of Ulster Vanguard, a militant Protestant group, said simply: "I wouldn't attach any great importance to lt."

Whitelaw Cantions Mr. Whitelaw himself spoke cautiously about the truce this afternoon when he addressed the House of Commons in London. "Many grave dangers lie ahead." he said: "Once there is a ceasefire, let me proceed as I believe it to be best.

"I wish to see the cease-fire first. I have my own views on how I shall proceed thereafter. Nevertheless, Mr. Whitelaw sounded fairly optimistic in his replies to questions. "I believe this is a starting point to the end of

Mr. Whitelaw's statement was welcomed by Harold Wilson, the Labor party leader. The Labor party's spokesman on Northern Ireland, Merlyn Rees, said that today's events marked a turning point in Ulster's affairs.

Vo Van Surg, North Vietnam's top diplomatic representative in France, told a press conference that President Nixon, "seeking vengeance for the defeat of his etnamization policy in South Vietnam," had ordered the air and naval bombardment of the North's network of dikes and hydrau'ie works.

These mad, savage acts of war have exposed the oiabolic design of the Nixon administration to cause large floods in North Vietnam and spread death and famine among the civilian population." Mr. Sung declared. He listed a series of widespread air attacks on dikes and dams along the country's river system during the past two months and said U.S. naval forces had been pounding sea dikes.

Mr. Sung pointed out that 15 million people live in the areas of the country's river basins. He said U.S. planes have grouped hoge bombs near dikes in some not a reprisal for recent guer-rilla strikes inside Israel. areas which will affect the structure of the land and undermine foundations of dikes when they come under the pressure of high-water levels.

The danger period for the high-water crests is from June to October, and particularly during July and August, he said.

Pointing to the river basins on map in his mission headquerters, Mr. Sung said. "The possible rupture of dikes in North Vietnam at the time of the swelling waters would threaten millions of inhahitants and put hundreds of millions of hectares of cultivated land in peril of inundation."

He said U.S. Air Force planes attacked with anti-personnel bombs the people working to repair damage done to dikes, "notably at Thanh Hoa and Nam Ha, killing and wounding a large number of civilians."

He said a large dam had been attacked at Thac Ba. If it broke, he said, several districts would be

Strike in Italy Protests Loss of Art Treasures

ROME, June 22 (AP) -Italy's top fine arts body went on strike indefinitely today to protest what it called the government's failure. to protect this country's patrimony of art and monuments

The Soperior Council of Fine Arts suspended all activity after It isarned the government had let a private real estate firm buy a wing of the Barberini Palace, the building housing Rome's National Art Gallery. The gallery had protested that it needed the wing to transfer archives and restoration workshops from a crowded

The gallery's request was backed unanimously by the Fine Art Council. The council's president, Giulio Carlo Argan, said this was another example of astonishing disregard by the government. He said the government also had failed to provide new funds for the recovery of stolen art works, to discipline the superintendent for fina arts in the city of L'Aquila, east of Rome, for stripping the baroque interior of L'Aquila's best church, Santa Maria di Collemaggio, to verify its original medieval structures, and to order friars in the Church of St. Domenico in Arezzo to dismantie a newly-built powerful organ which is gradually shaking loose the color from a masterpiece of the medieval painter

July Draftees Get a Chance To Volunteer

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP). Men ordered drafted in early Joly were given a fresh chance today to beat the draft by joining the Reserves or National Guard. They also were offered another chance to enlist in the regular forces for two years, instead of the usual three or more, and gain a wider choice of assignments than draftees,

Today's announcements reflect Selective Service moves to implement two new policies, one per-mitting men to opt for the Guard or Reserves after getting their draft notices, and the other perperiod.

The new rule says a man may not join a unit or enlist for less than three years within 10 days of his induction date. That would have left out most of those ordered to report early next month, but today acting draft director Byron V. Pepitone eased 15-Day Delay.

Mr. Pepitone authorized draft boards to grant a 15-day delay for men with reporting dates between July 1 and July 15 if they are actively being processed for Reserve or Guard appointment or two-year enlistment.

But ha said this policy will not be extended to men who are on orders to report for Army duty this month.

The 5-to-4 ruling in a case from rural Virginia arms federal judges with broad supervisory powers over the drawing of school district houndaries

Although Justice Potter Stewart's majority opinion did not deal directly with cases other than the two before the court, he hinted that strong actions by indiges to break down school segregation elsewhere could upheld.

Particularly, Justice Stewart emphasized that the test of whether school boundaries are legally drawn was "the effect" on the dismantling of racially separate school systems.

In a rare departure from virtual unanimity in school cases, the court split in barring the separation of Emporia, Va., from the Greensville County system.

The four Nixon administration appointees dissented in a bloc. Chief Justice Warren Burger, speaking for them, charged the majority with going "too far." He said the elimination of dispari-ties in racial ratios "is not the mission of the desegregation."

Yet, in the second case, the court unanimously disallowed the split of Scotland Neck from the Halifax County, N.C., school Emporia changed from a town

On Trade, a Surplus of Bombast

my, some of his more unfortunate rhetoric continoes to echo through American foreign policy. While Henry Kearns is hardly a primary figure in the administration, he is, after all president of the Export-Import Bank and it can only generate hostility and suspicion when he threatens Europeans over trade policy.

In a recent speech in Rome, Mr. Kearns assured an audience of businessmen that "unless the United States achieves a sizable surplus of exports over imports, our ability to maintain our heavy world commitments will be weakened." If we cannot get a surplus by raising imports, he further suggested, we can get it by restricting imports and embarking on a trade war. This language is a throwback to Mr. Connally's campaign of last autumn, when he was pretending that the American balance of paymente is made up only of trade and aid. In fact, foreign aid, military costs and the current trade deficit are only a part of the balance of payments. There are also the enormous movements of capital and profits back and forth across our borders. The Europeans know the figures, and they know that Mr. Kearns knows the figures. They take the view that they did their bit for the American balance last December, when they agreed to the devaluation of the dollar. To return to the Connally theme now can only amplify

To finance American commitments abroad. the need for a trade surplus is in fact highly goestionable. American investments abroad are now returning profits at an annual rate of nearly $8 billion a year. If we can achieve a trade balance of zero, with exports equal to imports, it is quite reasonable to hope that this flow of profits can balance military costs and the outward movement of public and private capital.

The essential reason for the sensitivity of exports and the trade balance is not foreign commitments. It is employment at home. The level of unemployment is a matter of the first importance in the politics of every industrialized country. More exports mean more jcbs, and that is why all of the rich countries are now competing to achieve and maintain trade surpluses. Onr trading partners tend to see our pressure for a trade surplus as an attempt to export our unemployment, and that is why threats like Mr. Kearns's have an inflammatory effect in capitals where we need cooperation.

The proper course for the United States is to proceed toward the world negotiations on trade and monetary reform that we promised last December. Unfortunately, as the Kearns speech suggests, we are not making moch progress toward serious and realistic dis-

Mr. McGovern's Dilemma

Any lingering doobts over the probability. of Sen. McGovern's success in capturing the Democratic presidential nomination have been all but dissipated by the size and strength of his victory in the New York primary. Winning 225 of the state's 243 elected delegates, the South Dakota senator now appears to be within easy striking distance of a first-ballot nomination.

Now more than ever, Mr. McGovern neede to clarify his position. He has come this far by addressing himself to the country's desire for basic change—in foreign policy, tax structure, welfare system and ways of improving the economy. Yet his primary victories, impressive as they are, hardly indicate a sweeping popular endorsement of the way he intends to carry out his program. In spite of his prolonged campaign, the details of that program are still vague and have already been subject to casual modification.

In making further modifications, Mr. Mc-Govern could soften his program to the point of innocuousness or he could produce a specific and believable blueprint for reform, In the former case he would recapture an undetermined number of voters on the rightwing of his party who, moved to panic by some of his unorthodox talk, might bolt to President Nixon. Bot in salvaging these, he could run the danger of losing many of the five million or so new young voters toward whom he has largely been pitching his campaign and on whom he is counting to wipe out the narrow lead that Mr. Nixon enjoyed over his Democratic opponent four years ago. The same problem presents itself in Sen. McGovern's eventual choice of a running mate. Ideological balance suggests a conservative; ideological compatibility suggests

In trying to respond to these opposite pulls -to some extent a problem for all major party presidential candidates-Mr. McGovern will have to move with more than mere caution. He will have to move with plausibility. It is true that compromise is the essence of democratic politics; but let compromise once take on the flavor of expediency, the candidate-especially as idealistic a candidate as George McGovern-would suffer a loss of credibility that could quickly translate itself into loss of support.

Perverting UNRWA

United Nations-financed camps for Paiestinian refugees in Lebanon recently as a means of making contact with ordinary Palestinians, permission was denied by commando organizations which exercise de facto control over these camps. Later, when the correspondent did manage to visit a camp under UN auspices, his movements were strictly confined to the school, clinic, soup kitchen and welfare center. The camp leader, whose office was decorated with commando posters, refused access to the rest of the camp, although all of it was built with and depends upon UN funding.

The extraordinary situation has persisted since at least the late fall of 1969 when commando groops openly took over the camps during fighting with the Lebanese government. The UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees has repeatedly appealed to the Lebanese government to exercise its responsibility for law and order in the camps, bot to no avail. In its last report, the UN group noted "the risks to which the withdrawal of government aothority from camp areas has exposed the agency and its staff. . . ."

Although the guerrillas may have lowered their military profile in the camps some-

When a Times reporter tried to visit what, it is evident that control is still firmly in the hands of extremists who may or may not represent the true sentiments of the people they are allowed to dominate. United Nations facilities have been preempted by groups whose aim is to subvert UN and all other efforts to promote peace between the Arabs and Israelis. Their activities include at least some military training for commandos as well as vitriolic propaganda, which totally rejects reasonable compromises that have been at the heart of international peace proposals put forward over more than two decades.

> It is intolerable that this humanitarian endeavor, for which the Secretary-General only recently issued a new funding appeal, should be so cynically abused. The Palestinians have every right to organize and peacefully agitate for their legitimate rights. But contribotore to UNRWA, of whom the United States has been by far the most generoos, have an equal right to insist that this compassionate UN program not be perverted by those who oppose the fundamental principles and purposes of the world organization-and that UNRWA funds be withheld from camps that remain under extremist control.

The Thrust of the Dutch

By C. L. Sulzberger

BAARN, The Netherlands-When contemplating their alliance with Europe, Americans are too often inclined to think of it in terms of the number of divisions, ships or aircraft being provided to NATO by these lesser powers and they are also inclined to overlook something perhaps even more important, namely industrial talent and human brains.

The small countries of the West furnish the North Atlantic coalidon with an astonishing and sometimes disproportionate amount of organizing ability and individual intelligence. It is interesting to compare this with the role of the Soviet Union's weaker Warsaw Pact allies. Who ever heard of a Pole, Czech or Bulgarian awarded leading responsibility in that organization?

There is no limitation to a man's importance in the Western world simply because his nation happens to be relatively weak. A notable example may be found in the case of Holland, a country of 13,300,000 people and 14,131 square

Account for Vigor

Yet two primarily Dutch corporations, Shell and Unilever, are among the 10 largest on earth. Two others, Philips and AKZO, are among the largest in Europe The concentration of technical and commercial ability demonstrated by these firms is of high category in estimating the North Atlantic community's overall

Even more striking is the personal role assumed by Dutchmen in international affairs, Joseph Luns is secretary-general of NATO. Sicco Mansholt is president of the Commission of the Common Market, A. H. Boerma is director-general of the UN's Food and Agriculture Organization.

Emile van Lennep is secretarygeneral of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, And Prince Bernhard, the versatile husband of Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and inspector-general of his country's armed forces, is also energetic president of the World Wildlife Fund and chairman of the Bilderberg Group that brings together American and European leaders.

This is an impressive human contribution to international and above all Western cooperation. It is interesting, when trying to ponder similar potentials in East Europe, that the only small countries where individuals seem to make a global mark are the heretical lands of Romania (Moscow's reluctant ally) and Yugoslavia (nonaligned and not an ally at the extraordinary part being played by their countrymen, Some say it is just a historical accident but others make the point that Holland is so small that it has had to make the whole earth its intellectual and commercial do-

Dutchmen are forced to learn many languages if they intend to get ahead. Their enormous global enterprises, dating back to the East Indies Co., have given them a tradition of overseas experience. One might add that in the 17th century Holland was a superpower: that its empire for the most part, was only shed a generation ago; and that the habit of administration on the grand scale is ingrained.

Of course this treasury of abil-ity, matured in little lands for the benefit of the whole West, is not a Dutch copyright, Belgium's Paul-Henri Spaak, who was president of the UN Assembly and secretary-general of NATO, is an excellent proof of this, And Spaak had e personal theory that certain advantages accrued to the statesman from a minor power if he gained sofficient stature to make a world mark

Spaak's Rules

His theory was that such a statesman, choosing his moment carefully, can help build firmer ground among the major powers and keep them from heading into impasse or confrontation. He thinks the small-nation statesman has a special freedom because he obviously cannot implicate the great powers and, at the very worst will only appear imprudent. Speak's cardinal rules were that a stateman of this background must always report fully to his allies, must be discreet in his methods, must promise nothing and above all must avoid traps. void traps.

The U.S. and Auto Insurance

By William F. Buckley Jr.

crystalizes there which will in

NEW YORK In the rest few days, the Big Government people in Congress will do their level best to take over from the states the suriomobile insurance business. The move in question is sponsored by Sens, S. Phillip D. Hart, D., Mich., and Warren G. Magnuson, D., Wash, and it seeks to accom-plish a good many things among them to liquidate the states automobile insurance laws, in preference for a gargantuan federal law based on the no-fault prin-

It is too fatiguing to go over the questionable constitutional basis for such arrant federal presumption. No doubt under the clause regulating commerce, the statists could get away with it. Franklin Delano Roosevelt tought us how to bend the commerce clause in such a way as to interpret the operation of elevators as interstate commerce.

The argument will be fought on the merits, or should be. And the pity of it is that the nofault principle, which is very al-Inring, might prompt the Congress to stampede the federal measure through, for no better reason than that something that is attractive today is better enacted today by the federal goveriment than tomorrow or the day after tomorrow by the states.

Experiment

The whole no-fault business cries out for experimentation, and the best way to experiment is precisely to permit individual states to accumulate experience in the field. Most eyes are on Massachusetts, which has had a no-fault law for going on two years, and already an experience due course answer the objections of the critics, or justify some of the hopes of the enthusiasts. The federal measure simply rides its way roughshod over many of the finer distinctions, and would bury them under the juggernaut. Here, in abbreviated form, is what the arguments are about: Shouldn't your automobile insurance entitle you to instant relief, in the event that you are in an accident, you require medical treatment, and you lose a few weeks pay during your indisposisay. But whereas medical bills are concrete, and here-and-now, es is lost income, an adjudication as to who was at fault often takes six or seven years. Why should you have to wait to be reimbursed? Even if it is the most obvious case of innocent victim and vile tortfessor? But it is one thing to reimburse you for obvious financial privations. But what about the more subtle privations? For instance, all the things that growd under the phrase "pain and suffering"? Suppose you have a back injury, it is treated, you are discharged, but the dammed thing mags you—say for the rest of your life?

The insurance people tend to take the position that a no-fault law, in order to work at all, has got to take a pretty tough at-titude toward pain and suffering. Sure, be reasonable: Allow the injured victim, through his insurance company or of course directly, to sue the offender in the event of obvious damege that goes beyond a couple of thousand dollars worth of hospitalization—for instance, loss of limb, or disfigurement. But hold it down to that down to some specified level of damage. Otherwise, you have got your no fault for the smaller injuries, without doing anything at all to lessen the appetite of a victim for exaggerating pain-and-suffering injuries. every kind of "first party"

So the debate rages. The federal bill simply takes a series of hard positions, and says to hell with contesting positions: let everybody conform to congressional wisdom, Why? What is the purpose of the individual states, if not to permit, indeed encourage, individuation, and experimentation? With all due respect, why should a resident of Connecticut defer to a senator from Michigan and another from Washington to devise witchle laws governing automobile insurance in the state of Connecticut? A whale of a good

It is clear from the quotes of Miss Vilar's own record that she is one of the tiny minority of women in the world who have had the opportunity to achieve economic and psychological independence.

"Clever" she may be, but certainly ignorant in the real sense of the word. She appears to have no knowledge of the historical evolution of human society and of marriage within it; no understanding and no vicarious sympathy for the masses of women and of men-despite her pro-man stand—who for many reasons must still suffer the limitations of an outworn institution. Still less does she seem to be concerned with the predicament of children growing up emotionally crippled within it. Least of all does she realize that her own favored lot is largely the result of struggle by dedicated feminists of earlier generations. JOY WILSON.

War Critics

Leslie Gelb and Anthony Lake in their article "The De-Esca-lation of Criticism" (IHT, June 16) attribute the war critics' silence to fear of undercutting the President and fear of being undercut by him. I doubt if even the war critics could be so totally pragmatic as to fear looking foolish "should the President have an ace up his alceve." Furthermore, they have never shown any fear of undercutting the President in the past.

Perhaps the war critics could be disturbed by the armored former actuary, I am convinced invasion of South Vietnam while the President was effectively deescalating the war. Or perhaps orthodox Communists misjudge the nature of the American war critics; the Viet Cong sympathizers in the United States are not so much pro-Viet Cong as they are anti-establishment. They only know what they are for on the basis of what they are against. They tend to be silent when faced with effective judgment. DONALD WOLFE, Tangler.

The Italian Blue Team and the world champion Aces, representing the United States, finished on top of the open field at tha end of the qualifying rounds and were joined in the semifinals by Canada and France. The semi-finals begin tonight with finals tomorrow and Saturday.

The victory in the women's competition was the first for Italy. South Africa, which won the event at the last bridge Olympiad four years ago in Deauville. France, finished second and the United States was third.

In the open series, Poland played superb bridge before a large audience to defeat France 11-9. This result meant that Canada, which had blitsed the Philippines to take all 20 victory points, was assured of one of the four playoff spots.

New AMA Leader Criticizes Nixon Medical Reform Plan

By Stuart Auerbach SAN FRANCISCO, June 22,-

(WP).—The new president of the American Medical Association said yesterday the Nixon administration's main plan to reform the health care delivery system—a network of prepaid group practice centers-won't be neceptable to the American people.

In his inaugural address, Dr. C. A. (Carl) Hoffman also attacked the still small but growing practice of doctors forming labor unions. He said that the physicians' union is one example of the "profound disquiet" that most American doctors feel. In his remarks, Dr. Hoffman showed that he would continue the same conservative policies that have marked AMA leadership in the past. He spoke against interference by government and insurance companies on the practice of medicine; cradle-to-grave na-tional health insurance programs and Price Board rulings that limit doctors' fee increases to 2.5 percent a year compared to 5.5 percent for the rest of the nation's businesses. "The state of mind of most physicians today is one of profound disquiet," said Dr. Hoff-man, a 68-year-old urologist from Huntington, W. Va., who has practiced medicine for 35 years.

Latest French Discovery: Comedian Woody Allen

French movie-goers have just discovered a new comic to idolize. It is Woody Allen, who is successor to Jerry Lewis. Poor Allen, like Lewis before him, will presently be the subject of essays comparing him to Molière, Daumier and Charlie Chaplin.

The sudden change in Gallic allegiance is for the better. Allen is a droll comedian and what may be termed an original. He has devised a brand of satirical farce that seems to derive from no one. Some years ago he was over here to appear in a film he had

Arts Agenda

The first performances of "Exotica," a composition by Mauricio Kagel for eight performers and about 100 non-European instruments, will take place in Munich on June 23 and 24 in conjunction with the exhibition "World Cul-tures and Modern Art" which runs until Sept. 30 at the Haus der Kunst. The work was recorded in March by Deutsche Grammophon. * * *

The final new production of the season by the Royal Opera, London, will be "Taverner" by Peter Maxwell Davies, which will have its premiere July 12 at Covent Garden. Edward Downes will conduct the production, which will be staged by Michael Geliot and designed by Ralph Koltai. Ragnar Ulfung will sing the title part, and others in the mostly male cast will be Gwynne Howell, John Lanigan, Noel Mangin, Beniamin Luxon and Raimund Herincx. On June 23, Montserrat Caballé makes her Covent Garden debut in the title role of Verdi's "La Traviata," with Nicolai Gedda as Alfredo and Victor Braun as the elder Germont, both singing these roles for the first time with the company.

Ali-Allen Films

The first of the all-Alien movies to reach Paris was "Bananas" (at the Studio Logos, the Elysées-III and the Imperial-Pathé), a zany romp about Latin American revolutions. It won him an enthusiastic following, especially among the young, who responded to his broad burlesque of politics and conventions. Now comes his second, "Take The Money and Run" (at the Elysées-Lincoln II and the Quintette-II), a more consistently diverting spoof in which he enacts a would-be cello player who goes wrong and participates in a series of awkward holdups that draw him a total sentence of 800 years.

The Allen conceits are realized with a rich and easy joshing of everything from the sociological documentary to the standard underworld and jall melodramas. He has the gift of surprise and this quickens the absurd plot maneuvers and the dialogue, which is loaded with unexpected exchanges and distortions of clichés. He has stylized certain episodes hilariously as in the cut-ins of the bad boy's sorrowing parents, both of them mustached and masked, as they relate their offspring's taking the wayward path. The numerous jailbreaks are ingeniously managed. Allen conducts one of these with a gun carved from soap and blackened with shoe polish. Dillinger actually made such a getaway, but Allen does not. The gun melts in a sudden shower that overtakes him in the prison yard and

"Les Mystères de l'Organisme" (at the Quintette III, the Elyzées-Lincoln I, the Quartier Letin and the Gaumont in English) is another delightful surprise. Shown at the Cannes Festival lest year, it was greeted with critical salvos, but censorship has kept it in cold storage since. It now has permission to rosm French screens (though it is forbidden to those under 18). Seen again, it proves worthy of the reviewers' initial reaction. It is directed by Dusan Makavejev, an irreverent member of the Yugoslav new wave, and mischievously embroiders bogus political theories with sexual freedom and makes sport of both the American and the Iron Curtain ways of life. Bold and dashing, it is a movie that may inspire imitation. Some may be shocked. but it is guaranteed to make everyone, including the bluenoses guifew. . . .

"Who is Harry Kellerman And Why Is He Saying Those Terrible Trings About Me?" (at the Marbeuf and the Studio Medicis in English) is unlikely to make anyone laugh. ## Spoleto Festival Opens With a Risky 'Mahagonny'

By William Weaver
SPOLETO, June 22—The Festival of Two Worlds has never been fil afraid of risks, with young artists, with rare and difficult works with anti-traditional productions, and, in a surprisingly high member of cases, these risks have paid off in the past. The public has come in droves to applaud an unknown opers of Donizetti or to hall s new Mini or Carmen

This year's edition of the Testival—the 15th—opened last nich with another risky production: the Brecht-Well opers "The Rise are Fall of the City Mahagomy," which has been given in Haly only twice before (at Milan's Piccola Scala and in Turin). Of course Brecht and Weill are as fashionable in Italy as they are elsewhere but fashion or not, "Mahagonny" is a long, complex work, still ravia; to the ordinary opera-going or featival-going audience and full or traps for its interpreters. The Spoleto first-night public was warm as always; but the creators of this version of "Mahagomy" had no avoided all the traps,

The first problem with doing the Weill opers comes in the cast ing This "Mahagomy" was given in the excellent Hallan transla-tion by Fedele d'Amico. The cast was only partly Rallan, however the charus musically first-rate was the Westminster Char whose Italian enunciation was often less than clear. But it wasn't only a question of enunciation; it was a matter of style. Betting Jones the Jenny, sang in an "intellectual cabarel" manner, with a small and not very pretty voice and an uncertain rhythmic sense. The tenor, Arturo de Castro, belted out high notes and held them too long as if he were singing "Cavalleria Rusticens." The Italians in its cast alternated signistically between grim version and opera buffa Even the fine artist Muriel Greenspon, in the role of Widow Begbier seemed at a loss and especially in the first act everdid both he acting and her singing.

A strong production might have helped pull these varied stylestogether, but the staging of Giuseppe Patroni Griffi though it had good moments—did not seem coherently thought out.

Obviously he decided to de-Brecht the work (a welcome deniste in these days when even "Lucia" is given in Brechtian trappings). but he had no clear idea of what to put in Brecht's place. The confusion of the scenes by Claudio Cintioli and Perdinando Scarfioti. was indicative: Some were postcard realism, some surrealist, some expressionist. Gabriella Percucci's costemes, too, while individually effective, were incongruous half Fritz Lang half "The Boylmend" The most positive features of the performance were the student musicians recruited in America and entitled the American Conservatory Orchestra and the conducting of Christopher Keene, who had a success at Spoieto last year with "Boots." Keene confirmed his remarkable musicianship and drew some first-rate playing from the orchestra. His efforts were sometimes imperied by the singers unwillingness to follow his tempo; nevertheless, the musical interest of the evening lay almost entirely with him.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Financing Set for BP's Forties Field British Petroleum (BP) has raised a loan of 2380 million from a consortium of British, European and North American banks to develop its North Sea oil discoveries. BP, which is half owned by the British government, says the loan is the largest ever private bank loan. Repayment will start when BP's oil starts flowing in from the North Sea in 1974. BP says its "foroil field will be developed in two phases. The first is to produce 250,000 barrels per day estimated to cost £211 million and the second phase to increase daily output to 400,000 barrols will cost about £124 million. Funds will be advanced to BP as required to meet develop-ment costs and the banks will be repaid from the proceeds of oil sales during the five years following the etart of commercial production.

Curoën, Audi Rotary Engined Car

The first Wankel rotary engine produced jointly by Citroën and Audi-NSU will be used in a specially designed Citroen car. The French and West German firms have been working on the engine within a joint company, Comotor, since 1967. Production of prototype engines at a newly built plant in the Saar should begin before the end of the first half of 1973. Citroin Audi, although still collaborating on rotary engine research, will not work on a jointly designed car to use the engine. Citroën acys it has designed but not yet built a car to take the engine. The rotary engine will also be available to outside purchasers if they show interest. Citroen adds.

Who Will Attend Talks and for How Long?

Uncertainty on Monetary Reform Growing splitting the world into restrictive,

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP-DJ).—The "shape of the table" for international monetary - reform talks is about settled, but the uncertainty over who will sit around it-and for how longappears to be growing.

The International Monetary

Fund (IMF) is soon expected to ask its 120 member governments to vote on setting up a high-level committee known as the "Group of 20" to negotiate a new, permanent system. The sense of motion in monetary matters is being increased, too, by the swing around South America that tha White House said Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Pederal Reserve Board, will start Sat-

In testimony before a House banking subcommittee today. Treasury Under Secretary Paul Volcker said that "nations are in substantial egreement" on the formation of a group of 20 countries to serve as a main negotiating forum for international monetary reforms.

He said Washington will move rapidly as other nations will move." but stressed that it "would he criminal to accept an unsatisfactory agreement for the shake of a prompt agreement. He noted that decisions on the forums for reform talks have not been reached as rapidly as he expected and wished. He to d the subcommittee that the broad outline of international monetary reforms could be worked out within two years, but he euggested it might take Forger than that to reach agreement on all details.

But strategists are sounding it creasingly less sanguine who ut when final agreement might, be reached. The full-scale an musl meeting of the IMF in Wissi-ington next September is the earliest time that all the people who would form the "G-20" likely to be selected, these sourches say, raising fresh doubt that the difficult policy issues will be settled even by the 1973 meeting of the IMF in Kenya.

"Nobody knows what the shape of the system will be, or ho will long it will take" to work it ou to cautions one insider, who add that be does expect "progress" by the time the IMF holds its 1973 meeting.

Fear Disorders Although protracted talks are

U.S. Tourists in 1971 Spent $6.6 Billion-7.5% Over 1970

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP-DJ).—Some 5.7 million U.S. residents spent about $6.6 billion on foreign travel last year, the Commerce Department reported yes-

The agency said the ex-penditure was 7.5 percent abova 1970. It included payments for transportation as wall as outleys for hotels, food and other services. U.S. carriers received about $1.1

billion for passenger fares.
Partly offsetting this dollar drain was the $2.9 billion that nearly 2.5 million visitors from other countries spent in the United States last year. However, in terms of the balance of payments, the department said there was a $2.7 billion "excess" of spending over receipts from foreign visitors. U.S. travelers to Europe and the Mediterranean area averaged about $850 during 1971 for trip expenses $20 less than during 1970, duc in part to extensive use of "youth fares" offered by inernational airlines. Soma three million U.S. residents went to Western Europe last year, 9 percent more than in 1970. The "most popular desti-nation" egain was the United Kingdom, the department said, where 1.3 million Americans spent about $324 million.

U.S. Trade In 2d Quarter Seen at Low Commerce Chief Says

3d 'May Be Less Bad'

WASHINGTON, June 22 (Reuters) —Commerce Secretary Peter Peterson said today he believed the U.S. trade deficit reached a low in this year's second quarter will now improve.

The figures have not yet been issued for the second quarter. but in the opening three months of the year there was a record trade deficit of $1.5 billion. Mr. Peterson, in a prepared tatement to the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he anticipated that the substantial exchange rate adjustments negotiated last December will greatly benefit the U.S. trade position. "I hope and believe that the second quarter will turn out to be the low point," he said. He said that "April was not a very happy month."

Asked if the third quarter would be a substantial improvement over the current period, the secretary would only say that "the third quarter may be less bad than the second."

Mr. Peterson said that if a trade agreement is reached, U.S. exports to the Soviet Union could reach hundreds of millions of dollars.

"I can see the opportunity of hundreds of millions of dollars in exports to the Soviet Union if the President decides to go ahead with an agreement on export credits," he said during questioning by committee mem-

Milan Exchange Gives Up August Vacation

The Milan Stock Exchange will keep on working throughout August this year, giving up the usual summer vacation and a century-old tradition.
Since the market was inaugurated in 1808 it always was shut down for at least two weeks in August to allow brokers, bank operators and others concerned with stocks to have a quiet vacation. After the Paris Bourse gave up summer closing some years ago, the Milan market is perhaps the last in the world to do like-

But with mounting technical

tary and financial events that often occur during the market closure, with negative repercussions at the reopening, the Italian Treasury Ministry and the brokers association jointly decided to giva up the vacation starting this year. "It was a right decision," a bank executive said, "The Milan market was no longer in a position to afford the long August shutdown without paying for it." During last year's shutdown, the dollar's convertibility into gold was suspended and the Bastogi merger, involving four of Italy's major holding companies,

"Many operators forced the trend downward in the weeks before the summer vacation so as to be safe at the reopening In case of negative events dur-ing the closure. This compulsory downward trend always caused a iot of technical problems," one broker said.

Banks especially put pressure on brokers and the Treasury Ministry to have the vacation "The most surprising lifted. thing is that this decision could have been taken long ago without problems," a bank official noted.

A recovery in some volatile is-sues helped the market in the afternoon, Bausch & Lomb ended at 52 1/2, np 7/8, after celling as low as 49 1/2. Early weakness followed the report that both the Big Board and the Securities and Exchange Commission have started to investigate trading in Bausch & Lomb on June 14, when it plunged 6.

Kresge rose 1 5/8 to 122 3/8 after trading as low as 120 1/4. The company has disclosed it expects a slightly lower pre-tax profit margin this year as compared with 1971.

Kodak Sets Record

Eastman Kodak, the only component among the 30 Dow industrials to gain more than a fraction, moved up 2 3/8 to 132 1/8 after trading at 132 1/4, its highest price ever.

Buoying Kodak was the announcement that heavy demand for its new Instamatic cameras and other photographic products had meant an addition of more than 1,000 employees this year. Berkey Photo, which said a week ago that it is working on the prototype of an instant picture camera, rose 1 3/4 to 24 3/8. Schering-Blough gained 3 to 115 1/2. Brokers related the gain

The range of models includes four-cylinde. Volvo 142 (two-doors), Volvo 144 (fourdoors) and Volvo 145 (station wagon), plus the elegant and luxurious six-cylinder Volve 164/164E. Both engines are available with fuel injection, which is standard in the sports car Volvo 1800 ES (2+2 seater).

Quality is what Volvo engineers aim at, and

All Volvo models have seats that are adjusted for perfect personal comfort you can even adjust the lumbar support! All models have the famous Volvo safety features, e.g. a braking system which gives approximatively 80% of full braking effect with one braking circuit completely out of action. All models are available with automatic transmission.

Volvo Tourist and Diplomat Sales

If you're temporarily resident abroad we'll be glad to deliver a brand new, insured. registered and ready-to-drive Volvo to you free of tax and duty. You pay no tax or duty as long as you drive your Volvo abroad (within the legal time limit). There's virtually no paper work for you in this arrangement. You order and pick up the car from your nearest Volvo dealer. (We have built up a special organization for this sale and at the addresses to the right you can talk to a good linguist specialist on tax-free sales.)

We deliver your Volvo equipped according to automobile regulations in your home country (e.g. US specifications). If your home country is overseas we'll be glad to arrange home shipment at very favourable rates. (Gothenburg/New York is free.) There may be some import charges in your home country, but even then, this deal should still be a bargain.

The coupon

We are not the only car manufacturer offering tax-and duty-free delivery to tourists and diplomats. But it wouldn't surprise us if you find that we make the best offer. Mail the coupon today for more information!

By Alan Truscott

The best performance during play last weekend at the 4th World Bridge Olympiad in Miami Beach was by the Irish team, which collected 98 victory points out of a possible 100 in a string of five matches.

In the diagramed deal most players opened the South hand with three diamonds, but Dick Barry of Dublin, the Irish South, chose to pass. He then had to make a decision when his oppo-nents bid aggressively to four spades with a weak no-trump and a transfer sequence: The twoheart response promised spades, and the jump to three spaces showed a maximum with excellent trade support. Pour spades is an optimistic contract, and would have failed unless North had picked a club lead. However, South emerged with five diamonds, judging that the penalty would be less than the value of a rumerable game to the opponents.

West led the spade ace,

Barry was not too happy with appearance of the dummy, which suggested that four spades might have failed, making his sacrifice a "phantom." But he was charmed with the opening lead of the spade ace. He ruffed and drew two rounds of trumps, ending in his hand.

It might seem that he was heading for a one-trick defeat, losing two clubs and a heart. But he was able to execute a Morton's Fork Cosp by leading the heart nine. Like Henry VII's Chancellor, who extracted money from wealthy merchants for his royal master, South was in control whether West was a spender CF & Saver.

If West was willing to spend his heart ace, dummy's major-suit kings eventually provided two discards for clobs, cutting South's losers in that suit to one. And if West was a saver who played low on the heart lead, the heart queen was promptly discarded on the spade king.

Notice that South did not make the mistake of taking a quick discard on the spade king. The discard had to be postponed until West had been forced to commit himself in hearts.

STRAVINSKY:

Chronicle of a Friendship, 1948-19 By Robert Craft. Mustrated. Knopf. 424 pp. $.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

THERE are so many brilliant bore. Evelyn Waugh and moving things in Robert cause he is afraid the Craft's "Stravinsky" that one turn to music, which hardly knows where to begin in praising the book. In the last two decades of Stravinsky's life, Mr. Craft functioned as friend, sounding board, musical catalyst and stand-in conductor under Stravinsky's supervision. Having collaborated on six books with Stravinsky, Mr. Craft is a practiced writer. He is also an extremely good one.
This book is not a biography which the author also intends to write-but a journal he kept during the 20-odd years of con-cert tours with Stravinsky and his wife. The tours took them all over the world, and Mr. Craft's description of remote places is as good as the pages of our best travel writers. His analysis and criticisms of the various performances they were obliged to. accept are acute and mercilessly funny. His long passage on the libretto of "The Rake's Progress" is not inhibited by the fact that. W. H. Auden, co-author of it with Chester Kallman, is one of the Stravinskys close friends. This criticism is nicely balanced by his frequent quotations from Auden, showing him to excellent advantage.

Because the Stravinskys often dined with or met the celebrities of the cities they visited, the book is a treasury of cameos. Mr. Craft reminds one of Aubrey's "Brief Lives" in his ability to capture a complex person in a few pages. Aldous Huxley is "a prisoner of his erudition," but much better in his talk than his books. He was nearly blind and there is a tender scene of his wife's directing his fork at the dinner table: "Un tout petit peu a gauche, cheri." Of Huxley's work, the author says: "Irony stales with the speed of yester-day's events, and how much of Aldous's will outlive him?" Stravinsky was economical with ords and made them count: "Music is the best means we have of digesting time." Commenting on Auden's notoriously wrinkled. face, he said: "Soon we will have to smooth him out to see who it is." There are impelies with Albert Camus, who coarsely described Henry James as a "pédéraste voyeur", with Edith Silwell,

Cards' Gibson Retains His Old Winning Form

By Deane McGowen

NEW YORK, June 22 (NYT). -When Bob Gibson lost his first five starts of the season, there was, of course, speculation that the fireballing St. Louis righthander was finished. He is, after all, 36 years old.

Such silly speculation no longer exists. Last night in Busch Stadium, Gibson pitched three-hit ball through seven in-nings and hit a three-run homer as the Cardinals whacked the San Diego Padres, 14-3. The victory was his fifth in a row. evening his won-lost record at Gibson added another elub mark to his collection. He now is St. Louis's top pitcher in total victories at 211, eclipsing tha mark of 210 he shared with Jesse Haines Haines pitched 18 seasons for St. Louis, beginning in 1920. Gibson is in his 13th. Gibson retired with a sore leg He had struck out seven, and did not issue o walk.

At Pittsburgh, Jlm Lefebvre eracked a two-out, two-run single in the 10th inning, giving

Dodgers 5, Pirates 3

Los Angeles a 5-3 decision over the Pirates' Prank Robinson, and Parker started the rally oce-out singles. After Duke Sims grounded out, Lefebvre scored them with his hit off Dave Glusti.

Mets 5, Astros 4

The New York Mets broke a tie with two runs in the eighth inning on Tommy Helms's error and John Milner's single to snap the Astros' eix-gama winning streak with a 5-4 victory in Houston.

The Mets' Jerry Koosman, 4-3, and the Astros' Tom Griffin, 2-2. traded four-hitters through seven innings and were locked in a 3-3 tle. With one out in the top of tha eighth Tommy Ages, hitless in his last 20 at-bats, ripped a double off the glove of third baseman Doug Rader and went to third on Ken Boswell's single. Dave Marshall hit a double play ball at second baseman Helms, who booted it as Agee scored. Milner then singled home what proved to be the winning run.

Reds 6, Expos 4 Pete Rose hit a two-run triple and Tony Perez added a basesloaded single to pace the Reds past Montreal, 6-4, at Cincinnati. The victory ended a three-game losing streak and enabled Reds to regain first place from Houston in the Western Division.

White Sox Triumph As Egan Bats In 2

MILWAUKEE, June 22 (AP).— Reserve catcher Tom Egan, who had a .175 batting average going into the game, singled in two runs and led the Chicago White Sox to a 5-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers today.

Right-hander Sten Bahmen with ninth-inning relief help, won his 10th game. He has lost seven.

U.S. Basketball Team Has Olympian Task

By Paul Attner

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 22 (WP).—They wear nondescript uniforms and they huff and puff in the 7,200-foot altitude like overweight joggers running a quarter mile. Their coach calls them mere babies who have only a few weeks to become men.

Each day since June 12 these 59 players have been performing for head coach Hank Iba and tha Olympic Basketball Committee. Twelve will be asked Sunday continua America'a domination of Olympic basketball, a task some observers predict will be too much for even these athletes.

The is frankly worried that this nation's Olympic unbeaten string, now at 75 games, will not last at Munich this fall. Ha protests that this is not the cry of wolf which seems to be heard every time America sends a basketball team overseas lately. Pro basketball raids on undergraduates have weakened the. talent on hand and intensive training, other countries may just be too strong this year. "Everyone thought we were in trouble in 1968," Iba said at practice yesterday. "I didn't because we had Spencer Haywood and we had lots of experienced international players from the armed forces and AAU teams." So far, no Haywood has emarged and the pon-collega players have been mostly unimpressive. College athletes will make up the bulk of the final squad and Iba is not sure if their ability can overcome lack of experience.

"Anybody who thinks you can take a pickup team over there and win is kidding themselves," said Iba. "We'll be playing against some players who were in the 1964 Olympics. We've sent coaches over there. We've sent players, we've done all we can to help them. Those other countries are hungry and we better realize our task won't be easy."

So the 68-year-old Iba has been running a difficult training camp characterizing his no-nonsense philosophy. The players have not been allowed to leave the beautiful Air Force Academy campus, Curlew (lights out) is 11:30 p.m. It is an all-work atmosphere which caused six hopefuls to leave the first "It's a tough, demanding all-basketball approach," said Maryiand's Tom McMillen, a 6-foot-11inch center. "Most of the players have accepted it. That's what we're here for, to play basket-

Iba does not intend to repeat last year's Pan American basket ball camp where, as one coach said, "some players came in with Tm a star, don't touch me attitude,' There were discipline problems and a lot of friction." The Pan Am squad lost, the first time the United States has failed to win the gold medal at those

"Attitude is important, very important," said Tha, who gave rsonality tests to all players before workouts began last week. "I'll take a player who has the right attitude and incentive over more talented athlete."

Yet to emerge to Iba's satisfaction at camp here are "three keys to winning in international ball: An outside shooting guard a strong center and a hard-driving forward."

Illinois State guard Doug Collins scored a game-high 30 points during this week of intrasquad practice. Swen Nater, backup center to Bill Walton at UCLA, is leading all scorers. McMillen and American Kermit Washington have impressed.

Of course, the center situation would have been improved if Walton had decided to attend. Or if Jim Chones had not become pro. And forwards Julius Erving and George McGinnis, both of whom turned pro before reaching their senior years, would have helped.

"I'd like to have all those guys. plus Johnny Neumann and Brian Taylor," said Iba, who did not invite Dwight Lamar or Richard Fugua, the nation's No. 1 and 2 scorers, because of their attitudes. "But we can't live in the past. These kids have just got to have the desire to pull this out."

The Middle Game

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON. —It was a the President, had oo alternative television set in every other persons. room which people tuned to another channel whenever Dick Cavett came on, and there were gales of automobile exhaust fumes.

The superinteodent was surly. "So you want to move to the middle," he said. "Who doesn't? Make an appointment for the agent to show you some space. I'm busy." The superintendent was busy. all right. He was gettlog some space ready for Sen. George McGovern (who won't do). "Is it definite then that Sen. McGovern, who won't do, is going to move to the middle so that his inevitable loss to President Nixon will oot be so humiliating?" I inquired.

Baker

"All I know is what I read in the newspapers," said the superintendent. "And everything I read tells me that McGovern. who won't do, has to move to the middle. I'm getting the space ready."

The superintendent, who was now pumping antomobile exhaust fumes into the space he was preparing for McGovern (who woo't do! said that it always seemed comfortable there in the middle. One reason, he confided, was that so many of the tenants used alcohol.

The superintendent throw several tax breaks at random around the space being prepared for Mc-Govern (who won't do), and set off down a plush corridor. Passing the space occupied by Humphrey, we heard the senator shout happily that things had to be done differently around the middle, but not too differently.

Then we passed the space occupied by President Nixon. He was practicing for an emergency television speech to reassure all tenants in the middle that they were good people who loved their country and that anyone who disagreed had a perfect right to disagree because that was what the middle was all about, al- rank, mailed Nixon's straight to though in good conscience be, some airplane pilots.

vast noisy dull place with a but to mine the bathtubs of such

Toe superintendent, it turned out, was hurrying to his own space to tune out Dick Cavett, viho was threatening to relieve the duliness.

"There's no point in you hanging around here, because I've got too much to do to show you what you're looking for," he said. "I don't koow what I'm looking for, I knew when I came in here. but now I've forgotten." "You were looking for a place to hang your conscience," the superintencent grumbled. "That's what everybody comes looking for But they all forget. It's all the television shooting, and tax breaks, and soaking the poor, and the mines in the bathtubs, and booze, and auto exhaust gases, and rushing around to turn off Dick Cavett on account of the suspicion that he is an intellectual - that's what makes them all forget."

He had opened a large storeroom and was taking bombs from its shelves. Slinging them under his arms and over his shoulders. he began distributing them, leaving several bombs outside each

"Everybody who lives here pays for these things," he explained, "and I'm supposed to deliver them. The trouble is everybody pretends that be hasn't bought any bombs, and they just ignore them, so I've got to come around eight hours later, collect them. and mail them out to somebody who will dump them where they will do the most good."

Where might that be? I asked. He couldn't remember, he sald. Nobody there could remember. It was a place they talked about frequently on television, but there in the middle it was hard to keep the names of places like that in mind. Things were too comfortable there, in the middle, he said, too comfortable for a man to spend his time struggling to think of the names of every country he was dropping bombs on to build a generation of peace.

The superinteodent left six bombs in the space he was preparing for McGovern (who won't do', and, as a special favor to

The Lunts, Almost 80, In Semi-Retirement

RILITATIAN TAKATARI KATATARI BARAK DARI KATATARI BARAK B

By Dan Sullivan

GENESEE DEPOT. Wis.—"They have youth and great gits and immistakable attitude of ascent, and those who saw them last night bowing hand in hand for the first time may well have been witnessing a moment in theatrical history. It is among the possibilities that we are seeing the first chapter in a partnership destined to be as distinguished as that of Henry Irving and Ellen

So ran Alexaoder Woolcott's opening-night review of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "The Guardsman" in 1924, and it worked out just as Wookott predicted. The Lunts went on to do 27 plays together lending triumphantly with "The Visit" in 1958) sod to achieve the sort of admiration reserved by the Cole Porter era for Garbo's salary, the National Gallery and cellophane.

The Luots were the Top and everybody on both sides of the Atlantic knew it. (Sir Ralph Richardson: "We have some very good performers, but America has the Lunts.") Now they live quietly on their 120-acre farm here, not officially retired but at their age (pushing 80) glad, they say, oot to have to think about making a curtain tonight. Occasionally, though, they make a public appearance.

They talk together as you're told they played together (or was their playing style merely a heightening of their conversational style?). Anyway, the dialogue has bounce and overlap: Question: How do you find today's theater?

Fontanne: Dull.
Lunt: Dull. What do you meao?
She: I go in cold and I come out colder. I haven't been thrilled the theater since, what?

He: Well, you liked "Becket." She: Yes, and "Man for All Seasons."

He: And the first two acts of, what was it? She: "Tiny Alice." But the third act did not exist. The author hadn't finished his play. We were left high and dry! He: Well Lynnie . .

She: No, wait a minute!

He: ... We liked Helen (Hayes) in "The Show Off" ... She: I haven't quite finished with this! I came out of that theater so annoyed and cross that I really might have hit Mr. (Edward) Albee. I knew that he had sold John (Gielgud) on the play oo the basis of two acts, and then he let him down! He: Now "Marat/Sade" was my cup of tea.

She: I found it deadly. I knew Charlotte Corday would kill him and I kept wishing she would. He: Oh, but what Peter Brook did around it!

She: It's not enough, Alfred.

He: It was just enough. She: It wasn't a bit. I didn't like it.

In other words, they're married. She's the assertive one, he's the moderate one—in front of company, anyway. I ask them if they used to criticize each other's work. Yes, constantly.

Fontanne: "We were two actors being perfectly honest with each other. To an outsider it might have sounded cruel. We didn't sound cruel to each other. It's just that we didn't have to bother with the now-darling-of-course-you're-the-most-maryelous-actor-in-t he-worldbut-there's-just-one-little-thing beginning. We've always been pretty straight with each other."

Genesee Depot is about an hour's drive west from Milwaukee, just beyond Waukesha. Lunt bought three acres here for $90 in 1915, and they've been adding to it ever since. Now they've got 120 acres. It's a real farm, but "Country Place" suits it better-no chickens in the driveway. There are the main house, guest house and a kind of lodge called the studio.

The New York Times Aifred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in Genesce Depot, Wis. At the top of a hill is a big vegetable garden. He pulls weeds every morning. She sews and is a demon at it (did all the curtains in the guest house.) "You wouldn't believe it, how simply we live."
Well, yes. But it is an achieved simplicity, chosen from a variety of other ways they could have lived. She is wearing canvas shoes and pearls. They are perfectly congruous. She: We learned not to have any social life in the daytime. The social thing is what you use in acting. If you use it during the day, there's not so much of it to use at night. We found that lunch someone always meant a tired performance. So I might buy, something at Saks . . .

He: A bat. She: But I would be home early. Then we would have a very early dinner and at 5:30 we would lie on the bed and turn on the radio and have a pap. At 6:30 we would be at the theater. I would take an hour and a half to make op. Then I would have a game of patience and a cup of tea.

Was she nervous?

"More and more, as the years went on." Funtaune: I was always impressed by what a piece of architecture a good play was. The skill it took to put it together, how all the parts worked individually and also contributed to the total effect. That's just the script. Then you consider what the director and the actors do. For a month, eight hours a day, you put it together bit by bit. An outsider would find it boring. It's not in the least boring to an actor. You put it together until it's slick and sliky.

They made one movie together, "The Guardsman" (1931). MGM. offered them a million-dollar contract to make more. "We can be bought, but we can't be bored," they said, and went back to the stage. Lant: They wouldn't give us a choice of what to do, you see. We would have had to do anything they told us. Was this Irving Thalberg?

Limit: And some other people. And today they are all dead.

She has a pet goose, Walter. Wally loves only Lynn "Can't stand Alfred." On the lawn Wally toddled over the hill and loto her arms, making noises like a rusty gate. "Oh, my darling! My boy! My darling boy!" she cried, stooping to embrace him. at that," Lunt whispered. Green grass, white goose, the girlish old lady, and the edges of everything back-lit by the late-afternoon sum. It was a moment,

PEOPLE:

Queen Elizabeth's husband Prince Phillip has written the foreword for a book in which a British population expert calls for two kinds of marriage—one childless and easy to break and the other lifelong. Philip said in the foreword to "The Death of Tomorrow" by Dr. John Loraine: "The conclusions he draws are ominous. But it is only when there is widespread recognition of the existence of such problems that solutions for humanity will be forthcoming." Loraine, a British Medical Council scientist in Edinburgh, calls for drastic moves to ward off global disaster through overpopulation. He is a 48-year-old childless widower. Prince Phi-lip, who has for years taken an interest in population problems and has suggested families should have no more than two children—though he and the queen have four said in the foreword: "Dr. Loraine is to be congratulated for giving such a vivid picture of the dilemma and choice facing mankind Unless reproductive activities are controlled, there can be no future

In some sort of landmark in labor relations, the union representing the royal guards in Sweden has suggested that "private guard companies should watch the castle instead." "Many of our members feel silly and ridiculous when paraning in the Royal Guard only to satisfy the tourists," a spokesman for the union said, adding that as yet no action has been planned. * * * .
